Call for Nominations SOE Awards 2011

The School of Education invites nominations for the Outstanding Scholar, Outstanding Teacher, and Exemplary Service Awards for the academic year 2010-2011. Nominations of SOE faculty and staff, including self-nominations, are accepted from all SOE faculty, staff, and students. To nominate a faculty or staff member for an award, please submit a brief (no more than one page) letter of nomination to Associate Dean, Dr. Amy Wells Dolan (aewells@olemiss.edu) by April 22, 2011. The letter should include a brief rationale for the nomination and a one-paragraph description of why the candidate deserves nomination for outstanding performance or exemplary service for the academic year. Additional criteria for each award includes:

Outstanding Scholar
Seeks to recognize one faculty member who has made an exceptional contribution to the general scholarship in their field through publications, presentations, external funding, mentoring of doctoral students, and other scholarly pursuits during the academic year. A case for recognition could be made on the basis of quality or quantity of contribution and a variety of outputs.

Outstanding Teacher
Seeks to recognize one full-time SOE faculty for outstanding teaching of undergraduate and/or graduate students during the academic year. A case for recognition could be made on the basis of exceptional classroom instruction but also for teaching beyond the classroom to include supervision, advising, and mentoring of students in school, university, and community settings.

Exemplary Service
Seeks to recognize a faculty or staff member for exceptional service to the profession or to the local or University community, region, state, or national and international scholarly communities during the academic year. A case for recognition could be made on the basis of outstanding research, programming or outreach that addresses the needs of a specific community, for example, or brings enhanced recognition to the SOE generally.

The Faculty Performance and Development Committee will review nominees on the above criteria and select award finalists. Curriculum vitae and resumes of finalists will be held in the SOE Dean's Office for review; then SOE faculty and staff will select award recipients through a secret ballot voting process. The Award recipients will be announced at the SOE Awards Reception on May 6, 2011.

   J. Teacher Corps - Mississippi Teacher Corps has partnered with the Southern Education Foundation (SEF) for a year-long educational project. This project has involved four of our second-year teachers (Annah Kuriakose, Jen Lawrence, Sharon Levine, and Elise Patterson) who, in turn, each selected several of their students. Throughout this school year each group of students has been working to complete a final project. Each project aims to examine the communities in which the students live and each group has chosen to do a different project. We have a film, a coffee-table photo book, a book of mixed-media, and an interactive website. The teachers and students, as well as Steve Suitts and Sybil Hampton from SEF, will be traveling to Oxford to present their projects on Saturday, May 7th. We will meet in Guyton Annex Room 208 at 9:30 AM on May 7th. The students will present their projects and take questions from the audience.
